

< Go to the original

NAME What is your provider's company name?		CONTACT NAME Who represents the provider's company?
PHONE What is the provider's phone number?	EMAIL What is the provider's email		SHIPPING METHOD Select Shipment Method ▼

Forms

Forms are the outcome of an increasingly bureaucratic world where individuals are recognized by inputs in a system. From a birth...

Andrew Coyle

Follow

UX Collective a11y-light ~2 min read · August 11, 2014 (Updated: March 14, 2018) · Free: Yes corporations and institutions of all kinds.

Forms are the outcome of an increasingly bureaucratic world where individuals are recognized by inputs in a system. From a birth certificate, to a tax form, to a death certificate, a citizen is quantified by a series of forms.

Forms are also an amazing source of societal progress. It makes life more productive and structured. Forms are a necessary evil in a complex world.

The internet has increased the efficiency and predominance of forms. It has also increased the ability to relinquish the negative aspects of the form.

Forms are usually boring, confusing, and ugly. The web allows creators to present interactive, clear, and beautiful forms. Despite this ability online forms are usually just as ugly as the paper equivalent, or they are beautiful but lack the visual cues to understand it.

I attempted to create a form that that is both visually appealing and clear. I created the form as a whole instead of a series of boxes and provided a visual affordance when you hover on individual fields so a user will know that it can be filled out. Let me know your thoughts and feel free to download the PSD on Dribbble.

NAME What is your provider's company name?		CONTACT NAME Who repersents the provider's company?
PHONE What is the provider's phone number?	EMAIL What is the provider's email		SHIPPING METHOD Select Shipment Method ▼

#design

#interaction-design

#ui

#ux